Outcomes for Animals Arriving in 2019

The benchmark for being considered a no-kill referenced above also mentioned that the 10% of animals euthanized should be those that 'suffer from irreparable medical and behavioral issues that impact their quality of life'. [1] Based on the figure below, a majority of the animals euthanized in 2019 were of the Unhealthy/Untreatable status with reasons such as severe medical conditions and aggressive behavior.

2019 Euthanasias by Asilomar Status

This shelter currently has seven different channels by which they place animals. The most popular channels are adoptions on the shelter’s main campus, reuniting animals with their owners, the transport program, and their offsite adoption program. The variety in the top four indicates this shelter is not only getting people into their doors of the shelter but are also making an effort get animals out of the shelter and into their community. They are also willing to invest into expensive programs like transporting animals across the country to save lives.
